Do you even like it, or do you think it's kinda pointless and overrated? In case you hadn't, it's exactly the same thing as hyde, but I personally think it's a much better extension. This is the lowest that ETH has traded since Dec. 3, 2017, when it traded at $194.60. On the weekly chart, Ethereum is currently consolidating just below support at $200, but shows a strong downtrend from Dec. 9, 2017, through Jan. 10, 2018. Ethereum Price Analysis Fundamentals In an interview with Yahoo Finance, crypto researcher and trader Kyle Torpey mentioned that the current price action of ETH was closely correlated to market conditions. He said that ETH was likely to trade in either a bear or bull market over the next few months. Torpey explained that the fundamentals of the major cryptocurrency were likely to drive its price, meaning that price moves were closely correlated to ETH's recent positive, bearish and neutral developments. He said, "I think it will come back to the fundamentals, because there's a lot that's going on with ETH, right now, that suggests a bear market." When asked what these negative developments were, Torpey replied: "It's pretty important to note that ETH is kind of doing what it's doing with Bitcoin, which is it is currently in kind of a bear market. So that's why it's very, very low, because the bear market that we're in right now is related to the bear market that happened [in 2014]."
